Observations:

- There have been random controls of the wing loading of the gliders for duration and speed based on a list with the specifications of the different models.
- The reason for the penalties were owed of non-respecting the 40 second's rule, landing inside the safety area and landing outside the landing field.
- The attained altitudes were well about those obtained in F3B (around 400 m). This makes it most times hard for the line judges to identify the right model. Maybe a revision of the rules is required.
- It was very difficult for the line judges on base A to verify at the same time the 40 second's rule and keeping an eye on the model. The organiser placed a set of 4 persons with stop watches close to the judges to prevent this problem.
- The layout of the field for F3B/F3G in the rule book is not always compatible with the situation on the field.
